LA FAVORITA

Ferdinand, a novice in a Monastery, falls in love with Leonora di Guzman, the mistress of Alfonso, King of Castile, although he neither knows her name or position. So deep is his passion that he decides to renounce his novitiate and seek her. This he tells to Balthazar, his Superior, who releases him, saying that he will return again.

The scene changes to an island where Leonora lives in splendour. She in her turn is deeply enamoured with Ferdinand, and, fearing that he may find out her position, does not disclose her name. She has Ferdinand brought to the island blindfolded by Inez whom he questions about Leonora, but to no avail. Inez and companions leave as Leonora enters. Leonora tells Ferdinand, without giving any reason, that their love can lead only to sorrow. He protests, and she hands him a parchment which she tells him will lead to a career of honour.

He still protests and at that moment Inez announces the arrival of the King, and Leonora leaves. Ferdinand is convinced that she is of noble rank. This is confirmed when he reads the scroll conferring on him a commission in the Army and as he thinks, a way to claim the hand of the lady he loves.

The King prepares a fete in honour of Ferdinand's victory over the Moors. Unaware of the love that exists between Leonora and Ferdinand, he sings of his love for her. But Leonora, while rejoicing in the honour destined to be Ferdinand's, is filled with foreboding because of her relations with the King. The King intercepts Ferdinand's letter to Leonora and his anger is interrupted by confused sounds from without. Balthazar enters preceded by a priest bearing a scroll with the Papal Seal. He faces the King, Leonora, and the Court.

The Pope has sent a Bull to pronounce the interdict on the King if the latter refuses to dismiss his favourite at Court and restore his wife. The King wavers and is given time to consider.

The King informs his Ministers that he will give way to the Pope, summons Leonora, and orders Inez's arrest. Ferdinand returns from the war which has saved the Kingdom and appears before the King, who desires to recompense him for his services. Leonora enters. Ferdinand, seeing her, asks for her in marriage. The King gives his consent with reluctance.

Leonora considers her future happiness and sends a letter by Inez informing Ferdinand of her true character. Inez is arrested and is therefore unable to deliver this.

The King decorates Ferdinand and creates him Count of Zamora, Leonora enters and finds Ferdinand ready to wed her. She believes he has received her letter and has forgiven her past.

The Nobles regard Ferdinand's elevation to Nobility as a reward for taking Leonora off the King's hands and refuse to associate with him.

Balthazar now comes to hear of the King's decision. Ferdinand, confused by the taunts of the nobles, hastens to greet him, but stops when he hears he is to marry the King's mistress.

At this moment, as he hears the retort, the King enters leading Leonora. Ferdinand tears the chain from his neck and throws it at the King's feet.

Balthazar and the monks return, and with them Ferdinand. Leonora, disguised as a novice, comes upon the scene and tells of her unsuccessful effort to let him know her past and asks his forgiveness. All Ferdinand's former love returns, but it is too late; she dies in his arms.

We'd like to propose a toast.

A toast to an enjoyable visit to the Gaiety.

The Gaiety bars are open a half an hour before each performance, so you can start on a pleasant note with a pre-show drink, or order your drinks for the interval.

Then as the curtain drops on the first act they'll be waiting at the table specially reserved for you.

After the show our bars remain open, so you can enjoy further relaxation in congenial company.

And perhaps propose another toast—a toast to your next visit.
